JUDGE JOHNSON AN OIL MAGNATE

HIS INDIANA FARM FLOWS THE PETROLEUM PRODUCT.

Kicks Against the Strict Practices of the Customs Officials Here, Who Are Obeying Their Orders.

(Special to Review.)
Douglas, July 14.—Judge Johnson received word yesterday that a big oil gusher had been struck within a short distance of his farm land in Indiana. The gusher in less than twenty-four hours discharged 1,200 gallons of oil, most of which was lost. The casing in the wells burst, and the drilling tools were lost. With this obstruction to the flow, the well spouted thousands of gallons of oil. Tanks have been set, and from last accounts Mr. Johnson had them all full and the well still running a big volume. The property owned by the Douglas justice is within a mile of the largest producing wells in Indiana. On several occasions the judge has had offers made to him to sell or lease, but up to date he has not disposed of the property. The recent strike of such a gusher will greatly increase the value of the property.

There is some kicking in this city about the strictness of the customs officers at this point. People feel that some consideration should be shown them by the officers. The Douglas customs officers act strictly to the letter of the law, and if a man comes across the line with only two or three Mexican cigars in his pocket, and the bad luck to be seen by these officers, he loses the cigars. While the customs officers are acting strictly within the law, many people are of the opinion that they could show a little more consideration for people who are leaving town with perhaps a dozen cigars in their grips, which the chances are would be burned up before Benson was reached.

COLORED MAN'S SUDDEN DEMISE

INQUEST HELD ON REMAINS OF HENRY ROBINSON.

Circumstances Attending the Death of Robinson Had an Air of Mystery, Which Called for an Investigation.

(Special to Review.)
Douglas, July 14.—Last evening Henry Robinson, a colored man about 52 years of age, died under what was at first thought to be strange circumstances.

He was at work yesterday cleaning the Mechanics' saloon, where he is porter. He went home after finishing his work and sat down outside the house. Shortly afterward he was discovered to be dead. A physician was called and an examination made, but there was nothing found which would indicate anything but a natural death.

Coroner Johnson arrived and viewed the body and summoned a jury. Alexander Taylor, with whom Robinson boarded, gave evidence to the effect that Robinson had been feeling out of sorts for some time, and was often seen spitting blood. The jury then went to the office of Judge Johnson and heard the evidence of Dr. Lindley and of a colored horse doctor named Livingstone. From their testimony it was proved that Robinson died from natural causes, and that was the verdict of the nine jurors. Robinson had a son in Tucson and a brother somewhere in Texas. He was a native of Louisiana.
